ABSTRACT

The 1978-79 report of gifts and bequests to 70 colleges and universities, which is part of a continuing study of higher education and American philanthropy, is presented. Narrative and statistical information are provided as follows: 59-year totals and averages (1920-21 to 1978-79) on gifts and bequests to 70 colleges and universities; gifts and bequests to 40 of the larger colleges and universities; gifts and bequests to 21 of the smaller colleges and universities and to nine of the women's colleges; gifts and bequests for the past five years to 40 of the larger colleges and universities, 21 smaller colleges, and nine women's colleges; 1978-79 sources of support; 1978-79 summary of gifts and bequests to schools for current purposes and for capital purposes; 15-year record of gifts and bequests; and 1978-79 endowment and enrollment. THE FIFTY-NINTH YEAR

Almost ONE BILLION DOLLARS. $986,329,000, to be exact. That's the story of 1978-79 for this continuing HEAP study. This is a new record — a new all-time high for the 70 universities and colleges participating in 1978-79. It marks the second successive time that the total of gifts and bequests from private sources to these institutions has exceeded $900 million. The 1977-78 report recorded $911,929,000.

This new record has been produced by all-time "highs" for a number of universities and colleges, for corporation giving, for foundation support and other elements of the philanthropic picture in higher education.

1978-79 results eclipsed those of the previous year by $75,251,000 — an increase of 8.3%. Regrettably, this increase was much less than the double-digit inflation rate for 1978-79. Thus, the record-breaking performance of the study participants did not produce the additional dollars necessary to provide the same purchasing power they had from gifts and bequests in 1977-78.

Significantly, gifts from corporations went up only 14.3% as compared to a 23.3% gain in 1977-78, although $155,716,000 represents a new record for corporate support. Total foundation support, however, rebounded from a slight decline in 1977-78 to a new record-breaker of $226,458,000 in 1978-79, a notable step-up of 23.1%.

THE OVERALL LEADERS

Of the 70 universities and colleges which have participated in the HEAP study (some since it began in 1921-22), 55 are or have been clients of Brakeley, John Price Jones Inc. and its predecessors, the John Price Jones Corporation, and the Brakeley Companies of New York and California, at some time in the 59 years of the study. (The exceptions are denoted by a (+) in Table II and Table III.) Twenty-three are current or recent B/JPJ clients, some for the second or third time. Where appropriate, these are specifically noted in the text which follows.

In 1978-79, among the major universities, three current and recent clients led the pack. For the seventh consecutive year, Harvard was No. 1, with total gifts and bequests of $67,003,000, an all-time high for any participant in the history of the study. It broke its previous all-time record of $64,955,000, established in 1976-77 and for the third year in a row surpassed in 1978-79 the $60 million mark. Stanford finished second with $64,514,000, passing the $60 million level for the first time in its history. Yale was third with $57,300,000, the first time it has reached $50 million in a single year. Yale reached its all-time high by registering a gain of $12,151,000 or 26.9% over its 1977-78 previous high of $45,149,000.

Among the Smaller Institutions, Pomona (also a recent client) recaptured first place with $9,823,000 in total gifts and bequests. This all-time "high" for Pomona was produced by a hefty increase of $4,063,000 or 70.1% over its previous year's record. Williams remained in second place with $7,255,000, a very small gain of 1.6%. Wabash (a recent client) was No. 3 with $6,984,000, actually a 39.5% decline from the all-time record of $11,545,000 for the Smaller Institutions it established in 1977-78.

Among the Women's Colleges, Smith took the top spot with a record-breaking $11,050,000, marking the second year in a row that it has exceeded $10 million. Its gain over 1977-78 was $531,000 or 5%. Wellesley maintained its No. 2 position by posting $8,621,000 (its all-time high), produced by a rise of $2,169,000 or 33.6% over the previous year. Mount Holyoke remained in third place with $5,109,000, which was 2% less than its total in 1977-78.

THE $25 MILLION-PLUS "CLUB"

In addition to the top three, 11 other universities reported $25 million or more in total annual support. The 14 in this category equalled the number recorded in 1977-78. In effect, two B/JPJ clients changed places to maintain this balance. A newcomer — Dartmouth — joined this circle for the first time while the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) dropped below this mark. Dartmouth achieved $36,849,000 — a phenomenal gain of $15,364,000 or 71.5% over its 1977-78 record and good enough to place it No. 9 in the top 14. Cornell was No. 4 with $38,401,000, while long-time client, Southern California, reached its all-time high of $37,956,000 as No. 5.

Among the 16 public universities (including all nine campuses in the University of California System as individual institutions), two former clients, Minnesota and Michigan, were on top, respectively recording $37,847,000 and $37,594,000. Michigan had a remarkable gain of 32% or $9,117,000 over its 1977-78 performance.

The $25 million-plus "club" of 14 universities accounted in 1978-79 for $576,777,000 — or 66% of all gifts and bequests to the 40 universities and 58.5% of the $986,329,000 recorded for all 70 institutions participating in the study.

Almost reaching the $25 million level were Northwestern with $24,669,000, New York University $24,545,000 and Princeton $24,118,000.

FOUNDATION GRANTS

As noted earlier, a new record for total foundation support — $226,458,000 — was established.

The 40 universities increased their aggregate foundation grants to $208,375,000, with a gain of $39,746,000 or 23.6%. Stanford led with $21,686,000. Harvard was second with $16,816,000 and Columbia third with $13,592,000.

The Smaller Institutions registered $11,906,000 from foundation grants, a rise of $572,000 or 5%. Bucknell took first place with $2,340,000. Pomona followed with $1,940,000 and Williams was No. 3 with $1,013,000.

Mills led the Women's Colleges with $1,239,000 toward the total for the nine-college group of $5,677,000, a gain of 43.9% over 1977-78. Smith was No. 2 with $768,000 while Radcliffe followed with $751,000.

CORPORATE SUPPORT

Despite increasing corporation profits in 1978-79, a gain of only $19,428,000 or 14.3% was recorded over the previous year. But, a new record for total corporate support was established — $155,716,000.

In 1977-78, two "public" universities, Illinois and Michigan, passed the $10 million mark for the first time. They repeated this superior performance in 1978-79, except that Michigan took over first place with $12,654,000 and Illinois finished third with $10,770,000. Harvard posted a substantial gain of 15.9% to climb to second place with $11,085,000.

Support to the 40 universities rose to $148,230,000, an increase of $18,556,000 or 14.3%.

$1,921,000 went to the nine Women's Colleges, a gain of 3.9% over 1977-78. The biggest increase among the three groups in the study was posted by the Smaller Institutions — 19% to a total of $5,565,000.

Leading the Women's Colleges was Smith with $411,000. Wellesley followed with $408,000 and Mount Holyoke recorded a significant advance of 40.3% to $404,000.

Stevens Tech posted a gain of 34.3% to lead the Smaller Institutions with $775,000. Beloit followed with $449,000 and Bucknell and Hampton tied for third with $343,000.

THREE-YEAR AVERAGES

The same five universities, as in 1977-78, led in the three-year averages, except that Yale replaces Columbia as No. 3. The order: Harvard $65,172,000; Stanford $58,371,000; Yale $43,678,000; Columbia $39,800,000 and Southern California $36,082,000.

Pomona led the Smaller Institutions with an average of $7,812,000 per year. Williams followed with $7,364,000 and the remainder of the top five were Wabash $6,989,000, Vassar $4,870,000 and Oberlin $3,559,000.

Smith and Wellesley remained No. 1 and No. 2 in this category among the Women's Colleges, posting averages respectively of $9,970,000 and $8,317,000. Mount Holyoke followed with $5,167,000 and Bryn Mawr with $4,019,000. Radcliffe replaced Mills as No. 5 with $2,295,000.

GIFTS AND GRANTS LEADERS

Of the total of gifts, grants and bequests of $986,329,000 for 1978-79, $819,112,000 came from gifts and grants alone — 83% of the total support to the 70 institutions from private sources. In 1977-78, gifts and grants accounted for only 81.7% of total support.

Harvard led the universities with $56,735,000, followed by Stanford with $53,470,000 and Yale with $50,000,000. Harvard posted only a slight gain — .9%, but Stanford and Yale had major increases, respectively 33.1% and 32.2%. Minnesota and Michigan rounded out the top five with respective totals of $34,999,000 and $34,444,000. Michigan advanced its record by 34%.

The Women's Colleges recorded $31,615,000, a rise of $6,526,000 or 26% over 1977-78. Smith posted $8,918,000, a gain of 10.8%. Wellesley reached $7,491,000, advancing 34.5% over the previous year. Mount Holyoke increased its results to $3,740,000, a gain of 11.3%. Barnard and Mills, however, posted notable increases. Barnard stepped up its gifts and grants 131% to $2,530,000 and Mills 70.3% to $2,130,000.

Support in this category for the Smaller Institutions was $50,189,000, up 3.3%. Pomona led with $6,842,000, a gain of 47.5%. Williams was second with $5,819,000, just slightly more than its 1977-78 record. Bucknell was No. 3 with $3,870,000, an advance of 124.2%, the largest increase among the 21 institutions in this group.

BEQUESTS

$167,217,000 represents a record for bequests received in any one year, increasing 2.5% over 1977-78.

Dartmouth reported $16,485,000 in bequests, the largest amount recorded by any of the 70 institutions in the study, an increase of $12,838,000 or 352% over its 1977-78 record. Three others in the university group posted $10 million or more in bequests. Stanford $11,044,000, Harvard $10,268,000 and Johns Hopkins $10,255,000. A number of other universities posted significant percentage gains in this order: University of California at San Diego, Vanderbilt (a client), University of California at Berkeley, University of California at Irvine, Case Western (a client) and Brown.

Bequests declined at both the Smaller Institutions and the Women's Colleges — 11.4% at the former and 1.7% at the latter. Wabash led among the Smaller Institutions for the second successive year with a total of $5,747,000. Stevens Tech was second with $4,476,000, followed by Pomona with $2,981,000.

Once again, Smith topped the Women's Colleges with $2,132,000. Radcliffe posted a large gain to reach $1,542,000.

CURRENT PURPOSES AND CAPITAL PURPOSES

In 1978-79, 57.5% of total gifts and bequests to all 70 institutions went for current purposes. Essentially, this was a minute decline of .1% from the 57.6% figure which prevailed in 1977-78.

In 1977-78, a sharp increase was recorded in the use of bequests for current purposes, the proportion rising to 31.8% of the total, rather than continuing at the 20% rate prevailing for some time previously. 1978-79 saw a shift back toward the traditional. Only 25.3% of bequests were used for current purposes while their use for capital purposes climbed upward to 74.7%, much closer to the traditional 80% than the 68.2% which characterized 1977-78.

Current purposes got 64.1 cents in 1978-79 of every dollar from gifts and bequests to all participants, a slight increase of one percent over 1977-78. Only among the Women's Colleges was there a major variation in the balance between uses for current purposes and capital purposes. Current use was reduced from 57.4% to 43.9% and capital use correspondingly rose from 42.6% to 56.1%.

ENDOWMENT AND ENROLLMENT

This is the report's first opportunity to comment on the endowment and enrollment statistics participants reported initially in 1977-78. The following highlights are notable.

- The market value of endowments of all 70 institutions increased by 14.3% to a total of $8,839,471,000. This gain was largely accounted for by the 40 universities with increases of 15.5%. The Smaller Institutions recorded only an 8.1% rise and the Women's Colleges a 9.1% upswing.

- The average endowment per student in 1977-78 was $10,459. In 1978-79, this climbed to $11,934 — a gain of $1,475 or 14.1% per student. This phenomenon is directly attributable to the facts that endowment market values increased by 14.3% and FTE enrollment increased by only 1.2% — much more endowment money to be divided among almost the same number of students.

- Only four institutions of the 70 reported any decline in the value of their endowments, none of an alarming nature.

- Harvard remained the only institution with an endowment of more than one billion dollars — $1,457,692,000 — a gain of $65,052,000. Columbia climbed up to $504,000,000, an unusual gain of 72.3% in market value. In this half-billion-dollar-plus category, it joined both Stanford at No. 2 with $586,792,000 and Yale at No. 3 with $585,400,000. Each had more modest gains than Columbia.

- Wesleyan remained the only institution among the Smaller Institutions with an endowment above $100 million. It recorded a slight rise to $107,191,000 from $103,806,000.

- Wellesley, among the Women's Colleges, increased its market value to $133,741,000, a gain of 8%. It remained the only women's college with a $100 million-plus endowment.

CONCLUSION

As the tables of statistics reveal, everything was upbeat in 1978-79, but not "upbeat" enough to reach One Billion Dollars in total support.

The overall gain from 1977-78 to 1978-79 was $74,400,000, considerably less than the increase of $104,851,000, which marked the advance from 1976-77 to 1977-78. The past two years, however, registered a rise in total support of $179,251,000 — the largest increase in a two-year period ever recorded in this study.

The bullish nature of philanthropy in 1979-80, the substantially increased rate of inflation in late 1979 and into 1980, and, in general, the bullish nature of the economy in the same period point to a banner year once again for the 70 institutions in 1979-80. Those statistics and comparisons will be recorded in next year's report.

Unless some unforeseen reversals occur in the patterns of support of recent years, ONE BILLION DOLLARS PLUS is a certainty for 1979-80.
